

MDP

MASTER of SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT PRACTICE

The University of Florida MDP program is part of the Global MDP Association, and is administered jointly by the Center for African Studies and the Center for Latin American Studies.

Each MDP student completes an interdisciplinary core curriculum spanning the social sciences, health sciences, natural sciences, and management skills; one or more specializations in the student's thematic and regional interests; and a field practicum devoted to development issues with a host organization that the student chooses.

MDP alumni are employed in organizations across the development field—NGO, government, private sector, university—around the world.

CONNECT WITH US ONLINE!

@MDP.Program

MDP.Africa.ufl.edu

MDPProgram

MDP PROGRAM

The MDP degree consists of 45 credit hours

- Two 3-credit core courses in each of the four sustainable development pillars:
 - Social sciences
 - Health sciences
 - Natural sciences
 - Management skills
- Two 3-credit courses to prepare for and follow up after the field practicum.
- 15 credit hours of electives focused on one or more specializations, concentrations, minors, and/or certificates.

Joint degree programs are possible: MDP/PhD, MDP/JD, or others.

Applying to the Program

Application Deadline:

- Preliminary Fall Deadline: February 1
- Rolling Admissions through June

Online Application:

[www.graduateschool.ufl.edu/admissions/
how-to-apply/](http://www.graduateschool.ufl.edu/admissions/how-to-apply/)

Student Funding:

<http://mdp.africa.ufl.edu/funding-opportunities/>

Contact:

Dr. Andrew Noss
Email: anoss@ufl.edu

Visit our website for more information: <http://mdp.africa.ufl.edu/>

